DETAILED ACTION

1. Applicant's 2/11/05 Amendment, which directly amended claims 23, 24, 29-31, is acknowledged.

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and, In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

2. Claims 23-25 and 27-32 are rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 13 and 17-21 of U.S. Patent No. 6,697,447 B1. Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the steps that are not similar between the application and said patent are either: a) inherent when one puts into practice the method disclosed in the patent; or b) obvious over Bartos ("Pushing nuclear plants to their design power ratings," Power, May, 1993).

With the exception of the first three steps in claim 23, i.e., a) providing analyses and evaluations to generate a safety analysis report; b) providing licensing support; and

c) providing technical consultation, all other steps in the claims are the same as in said claims of U. S. Patent No. 6,697,447 B1. However, these non-recited steps are inherent when one puts into practice the method in said patent.

The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) regulates the maximum power at which a commercial nuclear power plant can operate. This power level is included in the license and specification of the plant. The NRC controls any change to a license or technical specifications for the plant. Specifically, NRC states in 10 CFR 50.90:

"Whenever a holder of a license or construction permit desires to amend the license or permit, application for amendment must be filed with the Commission as specified in § 50.4, fully describing the changes desired, and following as far as applicable, the form prescribed for original applications."

The non-recited steps a), b) and c) are inherently performed in the preparation of licensing documents in support of a power uprate and in responding to NRC questions/comments on these documents. These licensing documents include a safety analysis report that contains operational and emergency procedure matters, and a technical specification.

Alternatively, the non-recited steps are also obvious over Bartos ("Pushing nuclear plants to their design power ratings," Power, May, 1993) who teaches the same maximum extended load line analysis, albeit for a slightly different power uprate value, as that in U. S. Patent No. 6,697,447 B1. He teaches that in order to operate at a higher power level, one must first obtain a revision of the plant's operating license from the NRC (see p. 73, col. 2, lines 3+). His teachings include the same steps as Applicant's, i.e., a) analysis and evaluations to generate a safety analysis report (see p. 73, last paragraph); b) licensing support being provided by the engineering team in the preparation of a license amendment (see p. 73, "Amendment preparation" and page 74, col. 3, last paragraph); c) technical consultation provided by the vendor, e.g., on system modifications (see p. 70, col. 2, item (6)), and the station engineering department on engineering items (see page 74, col. 3, last paragraph).

Conclusion

3. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

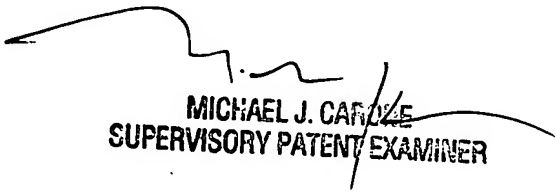

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
